

Justice for All (2022)

by Natasha Ramras (www.ramrasart.com), 30x40, acrylic on canvas (in collection of Crispin, Hannon, Marton, Camberleng LLC).

Natasha Ramras is an Oregon/Washington painter who uses acrylic and oil to capture the beauty of the Pacific Northwest in her landscapes and the salient issues of the day in her contemporary works. This painting grew from a conversation about how difficult it is to find contemporary art that reflects current issues, contains interesting imagery, and is relevant to the legal profession. It reflects the artist's hope that justice should be unbiased, based on facts and the language of the law. The figure represents the diversity that is becoming more common among today's judicial ranks. Ramras is married to a Multnomah County (Oregon) judge.
